

Fuel injection systems are more efficient than carburettor systems. Even so, they require repairs or replacement to ensure optimum performance of the vehicle. Fuel injection systems control the precise fuel distribution electronically through one or more fuel rails to every cylinder's fuel injector.

In any case, fuel injection systems are complex and we would not recommend you attempt the repairs yourself. It would be a better idea to call on the experts when dealing with problems concerning fuel systems. South Coast Auto Services have the expertise and the tools to get the job done within a reasonable time and cost.
