Automatic Transmissions are extremely complex and have many moving parts. An automatic transmission specialist is trained to pick up even minor clues that indicate that there could be major problems developing within the transmission. These are clues that could be overlooked by an untrained person and failure to pick them up could lead to major and expensive problems.

Specialists provide you with a guaranteed level of workmanship. All the work is carried out to the highest standards using specialist tools and equipment. The technicians are trained to handle even the most complex electronic based transmission systems. A lack of expertise in diagnosis, service and repairs can inadvertently lead to costly mistakes.

Australia's most experienced automatic transmission specialist is Fluidrive®. Please feel free to discuss your automatic transmission needs with any of our personnel.

A parallel can be drawn between a transmission specialist and a medical specialist. If you have a specific health problem you go to an expert who specializes in that area. The same should apply to your car and particularly your automatic transmission.
